³⁰Then, after the connection [of the soul] to the products [of māyā] and to the instruments [of knowledge and action, there follows] the connection (sambandhaḥ = saṃśleṣaḥ) to binding fate, because of which the soul is bound to the fruits of action which he has previously accumulated. This is the purport: the binding (niyamaḥ) of souls to the fruits of their actions is not caused by [the souls'] actions, because their function, as with ploughing and such like [agricultural activity], is solely the generation of their own particular fruits. And it is not caused by any other of the principles, because there is no proof that they are the cause of any other effects since they are established by their own effects alone. This has been taught above. And so, just as in the case of ploughing and such like, where there must be someone appointed [as overseer] by the king, here too there must be something which binds [the fruit of an action to its agent]. This binding factor is another bond called binding fate.

‘Where the power of action is subdued and the power of knowledge predominates, that tattva is called vidyā: it illuminates because it has the form of knowledge. (30) Nāda and the [lower] divided Bindu are said to be in sadāśiva-tattva. The Vidyēśvaras, however, are in īśvara-tattva; and the Mantras and Vidyās are in vidyā-tattva. (31) There is no order [of evolution] among these five [pure tattvas] because they are beyond time: this arrangement is given in scripture, as is well known, in consideration of their functions.’

22. One of two references (the other being in Guhyasūtra 12:42–3) to this tattvatraya in the Niśvāsātattvasaṃhitā, from the account of muktidīkṣā using the syllables of the vyoma-vyāpi-mantra in the Guhyasūtra:

yājyākṣareṇa homas tu hutvā yojyeta vai śive|

hrasvākṣaro hy ātmatattvaṃ pluto vidyā nigadyate|| 9:183||

nirvāṇaṃ śivatattvan tu yatra yukto na jāyate|

eṣa yāgavidhiḥ prokta ekaikasyākṣarasya tu|| 9:184||

23. The eleven “tattvas” of the the Lokātīta presented in the Niśvāsamukha (the passage is discussed by SANDERSON 2006:163–8, who follows a different numeration):

viditvaikādaśādhvānaṃ nirviśaṅkaḥ samācaret|| 4:92||

prathame jālam etat tu dvitīye mūrttisañjñakam|
ṭṭīye paśur ākhyātam pāsās caiva caturthake|| 4:93||
